ST. PATRICK 1930-1941

The turbine steam ship St. Patrick was built primarily for the Fishguard-Rosslare service but served as a relief vessel for the Channel Islands operations of the Great Western Railway. The handsome looking ship was launched on 15th January 1930 and made her maiden voyage to the Channel Islands on 18th April.

During the war the St. Patrick maintained the vital link between Britain and the Republic of Ireland. On 13th June 1941, she was bombed during an inward crossing from Rosslare to Fishguard. Captain J. Faraday, the Master and Commodore Captain of the G.W.R. fleet, with 18 members of the crew and 10 passengers were lost.
