Note mail sorting started on the 17-4-1884, the day the mails arrived at Port Said.

Postage charged at 10 pfennig, the post card rate from Germany via Brindisi.

Due to the severe cholera epidemic that was raging in the Nile Delta area at this time (1883/1884), the mails could not proceed overland from Alexandria to Suez and the postal authorities gave permission for the mails to proceed direct from Brindisi via the Suez Canal. In this case the sorters had arrived from Bombay and had been conveyed through the canal to Port Said on the S.S. Nepal. They were directly transferred to the S.S. Venetia and they started sorting the mail at Port Said for the return journey to India.

This is a native process shop. The several things hanging or right are pieces of wood for blowing pipes. Above are cones. Below, a the left bundles of cotton string. The rest of the things are pretty obvious I think.
