This portrait of Wellington by Francisco de Goya was painted in 1812, when Wellington entered Madrid after winning the Battle of Salamanca. He was at this time a member of three Orders of Knighthood – the Bath, the Tower and Sword of Portugal, and San Fernando of Spain – and he wears their badges in this portrait. While in Madrid he received the Order of the Golden Fleece and Goya altered the original painting in order to show it. Further alterations were made in 1814 so as to include the Military Gold Cross and the three clasps, which were sent to Wellington in Spain in 1813.

THE PASCHAL FIRE

When the High King of Ireland was to light the Bealtaine Fire for the pagan festival at Tara, he saw another fire blazing on the nearby hill of Slane.

Saint Patrick, who had kindled his fire in honour of Christ's resurrection, so impressed his hearers that the king gave his personal protection to Patrick and the new religion. Before many years, Paschal fires like Patrick's were being lit in every part of Ireland.
