Ever since 1453 Europeans have been hoping to expel the Turks from Europe. The nations of Europe hoped that this could be done as one of the results of the World War. But the Turks surprised the entire world by adopting a republican form of government and soon became so strong that no one dared to undertake the difficult task of driving them out. Their capital city is now Angora, in Asia (Fig. 260).

Census was taken in 1927, and it showed that 48.1% are men, and 51.9% (7,000,000) are women.

The largest cities of Turkey - Constantinople (ISTANBUL) of course being by far the largest in size with a population of 690,857, while Smyrna (IZMIR) comes second with 153,924 and Angora (ANKARA) rates third in size with a population of 74,583.

RELIGION.

Although Islam is no longer recognized as the religion of the State, Moslems form the vast majority of the population of the new Turkey -- on October 28th. 1927 the Census showed a total of 13,269,806 MOSLEMS with other forms of religion making up the very insignificant remainder of the population.

Up to the World War, Turkey was known as the "OTTOMAN EMPIRE" having a total area then of about 710,234 square miles and a population of 21,273,900. Turkey had previously lost considerable territory by reason of her participation in the Balkan Wars of 1913 (which closed but a short time before the great World conflict opened the next year - in 1914). However, up to the World War, Turkey at all times remained the complete mistress of the Straits of the Dardanelles. The Allied occupation of Constantinople became complete on March 16th. 1920.

Fig. 260. — A public letter-writer, Constantinople

Under the Republic laws enacted in 1925 enforced registration of all marriages, gave the power to grant divorces to the State. This, Kemal Pasha promptly did by divorcing his wife, Latife, who was 40 years old and an advanced feminally followed his advice, and replaced the Fez, always held in the Republic, and the Turban.

In Turkey and many other countries in Asia, and even in some parts of Europe, every town and city has its public letter-writers. Why do the people not write their own letters?

The Gregorian calendar, modeled after the German, was adopted, also the 24 hour clock. Civil marriages were made after September 1st. 1926.

In the years 1922 to 1929 - Turkey exports annually to the United States almost as much in exports values as she buys from us (about an average of $12,000,000. against about $6,000,000.00 purchases from the U.S.A.).

Turkey has large mineral resources, but as yet little developed. She produces iron ore, zinc, manganese, antimony, copper, borax, emery, asphalt, meerschaum, some salt, gold and silver. Has some fisheries, but the main industry is, and always has been - agriculture.
