This was written by an officer of a regiment in garrison here years ago who was evidently "fed up" & far from home. Still he eventually returned to the Army and was killed on a island in the vicinity where probably the least bit of those verses was published upon him. Had his references applied to the Old Islands would it be likely have fared to express his views?

McCABER'S CURSE ON NASSAU

Land of cursed rocks and stones,
Land where many lay their bones;
Land of rascals, rogues, and pedlers,
Busy scandalizing meddlers,
Land of poverty and want,
Where pride is plenty, no one scant,
Take this my very heartiest curse,
And if I could I'd give you worse,
For all your natives, I know well
Love me as well as I Love Hell,
And to them I'd be just as civil,
And wish them all sent to the Devil.
May whirlwinds, earthquakes, tempest, rain
Fever, ague, want, and pain,
Poverty and famine fell
Drive them all to hottest Hell,
And when they're dead, the worthless does
May they be rooted up, by hogs
Or, lying in their lodgings narrow,
May land crabs feast upon their marrow.
