PRESTWICK CRASH.

The burned out wreckage of the plane "Cathay" G-ALSA at Prestwick Airport.

INQUIRY INTO PRESTWICK ACCIDENT

THE Ministry of Transport and Civil Aviation announced this week that a public inquiry will be held into the accident to B.O.A.C. Stratocruiser G-ALSA Cathay at Prestwick Airport on Christmas Day. Arrangements for the inquiry, which is to be held in Scotland, will be announced shortly.

The aircraft, completing the first stage of a scheduled flight from London to New York, overturned on landing at Prestwick and caught fire. Of the 36 people aboard, 28 lost their lives; seven of the eight survivors were members of the flight crew. The Stratocruiser was commanded by Capt. W. L. Stewart, a senior B.O.A.C. pilot with over 300 transatlantic crossings to his credit.

The accident followed a ground-controlled approach in the early hours of the morning under weather conditions reported as: cloud base, 700ft; visibility, 2½ miles; drizzle. Accident investigators were reported to be considering a theory that after the aircraft had undershot the runway the port undercarriage collapsed, severing fuel lines in the wing. Impressions were found in damp ground some 200 yards short of the threshold to the main runway, and a trail of wing fragments led to the wreckage of the aircraft at the side of the runway.

LONDON - PRESTWICK

The BOAC Stratocruiser "Cathay" G-ALSA,commanded by Capt. W.L.Stewart,a senior pilot with 300 Atlantic crossings to his credit,took off from London Airport for New York in the early hours of the 25th. At 3.30 a.m.on this date it came into land at Prestwick Airport,the approach was unduly high,and the descent abnormally steep,with the result that the plane undershot the runway,crashed on landing and caught fire. Twenty eight of the people on board were killed,seven of the eight survivors were members of the crew
