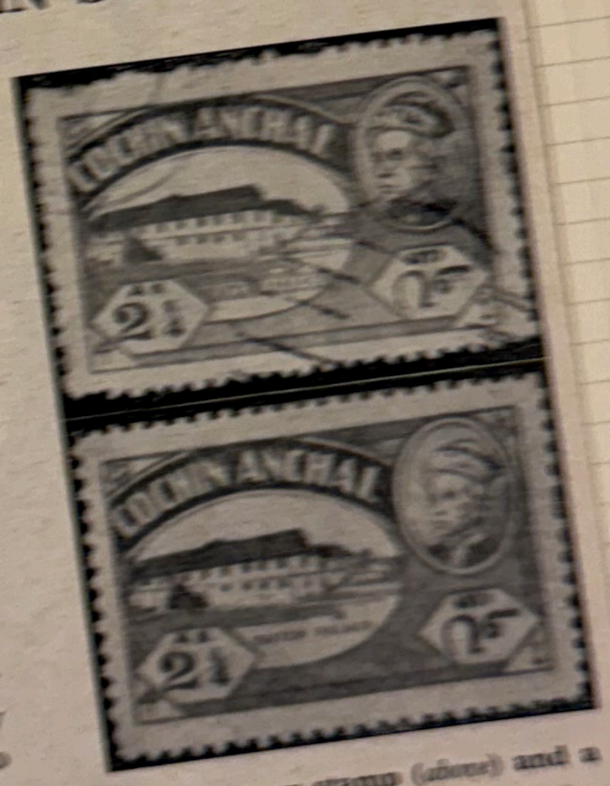
MYSTERIOUS COCHIN STAMP

Can any reader throw light on this hitherto unknown specimen kindly sent to us by our correspondent in Southern India, Mr. R. F. Stoney. It is similar in all respects to S.G. 117, shown beneath, except that the head is larger, the conch shell in the top right corner is turned at a different angle, the words "DUTCH PALACE" are on a lined background and the colour is a deeper and more yellowish green. Otherwise all parts of the design are the same, line for line, as the listed variety and the impression is identical; the paper is the normal yellowish wove and shows an identifiable portion of the watermark Type 27; the perforation is rough but approximately the usual gauge.

We should be interested to hear if other readers have similar specimens and any information that may elucidate its status. No information is available from the printers in Madras who report that their records were destroyed some years ago.



The mystery stamp (above) and a normal.
