Cal Cunham

In the year 1814, Mr. Greene was at once reduced from affluence by the failure of a mercantile house with which he as concerned, and his property being mortgaged for the remainder of his life, a situation in the Revenue was procured for im, by Lord Enniskillen, in which he continued to act, without incurring, in a single instance, the censure or disapproba- on of the Board of Excise; in confirmation of which, he would solicit a reference to the Irish Commissioners; one of hom was sent down to the north of Ireland, in August, 1827, for the purpose of inspecting the several detachments of evenue Police stationed there: and on his viewing that commanded by Mr. G. he considered him too for advanced in life r the active and laborious duties of that service, and on 5th January following, without previous notice, he was deprived a situation that afforded him an income from 2 to £300. per annum; and was allowed but the sum of £3. to remove imself and family to Dublin, a distance of 150 miles; where on their arrival, after having paid their debts at Letterkenny, here they had been stationed, and the expenses of their journey, they had but a very small sum of money remaining.

Mr. Greene, however, indulging the hope that the Board of Excise would give him compensation, or some situa- on more adapted to his time of life, waited on the Commissioners; but they were pleased to say "that he had hitherto acted under the authority of their Board, and by their direction alone, and not under any commission from Government, and that being the case, there was no provision made for persons circumstanced as he was;" consequently, Mr. Greene after aving served the Revenue with fidelity a considerable part of his life, was consigned with his wife and seven children to xtreme want, and for the last 18 months, they have been depending, for the most part, on the contributions of their friends or the necessaries of life, having repeatedly memorialled the Board of Excise for employment, the Lords of the Treasury, nd even the Lord Lieutenant, but without effect. Under these hopeless circumstances, it seems imperative on the part of Mrs. Greene, that she make some immediate exertion for the support and education of her children, in order to which, her riends have recommended, that she endeavour to establish a boarding house, for which they conceive her to be adapted, but which for want of money to procure a house and furniture, she is utterly unable to accomplish.

"As a person warmly interested in Mrs. Greene's welfare, and anxious as far as I can, to promote her success in her "resent object, I willingly comply with her request of my confirming the above made statement, and I feel myself at liberty "o do so, as from constant communication with her, I have had every reason to form the highest opinion of her, nor is there "ny establishment under similar circumstances I would with greater confidence recommend."

FLORENCE BALFOUR.

rivately carried EL to the Excise Office in London, extremely interesting and informative 2pp 32 ments enclosed, relating to a aged gentleman ex: employee of the Excise Office who had been redundant, after fourteen years employment therein, without any remuneration, having a wife and children to support. A management committee had been set up, listed members noted on the sures, to raise funds for the unfortunate gentleman and his family. Fascinating circulars worthy of r researches.
