Germany American and British Zones

The currency reform in the three western occupation zones of Germany on June 18th, 1948, formed the basis for West Germany's impressive postwar recovery. Cash and bank deposits were exchanged at a ratio of 100 Reichsmark to 6.5 DM; debt at a ratio of 100:10; and wages, prices, and rents at a ratio of 1:1. Thus, the owners of physical assets such as goods, companies, and real estate gained while savers lost. Current postage stamps were overprinted with a post horn design in two forms: a band and a net.
